Eight Vases, Five Apples, Three Mushrooms,... The titles of Bert Huyghe's new works don't leave much to the imagination. What you see is what you get. Or as Huyghe, claiming a well-known internet-meme, labels it: "It ain't much but it's honest work."

In the midst of the Covid-pandemic the artist decided to start at the beginning and paint everything. In an attempt to bring some order to this chaotic world Huyghe divides his brightly colored subjects among different canvases and lets them look loudly and proudly at viewers exclaiming: here we are now, contemplate us.

About the artist:

Born in 1989, Huyghe was raised in rural Meetjesland, focusing on a football career that never happened. He loves movies, astrology and Italian food. Nowadays he lives hidden in Ostend were he paints mushrooms, apples and fish in a cozy atelier in the harbor.
